BV
4211
.M25
1871

PREACHING CHRIST

McIlvaine.

Library of Congress.
Chap. BV4211
Shelf .M25
Copyright No. 1871
UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

285. B1

THE WORK

OF

PREACHING CHRIST.

BY

CHARLES PETTIT McILVAINE, D.D., D.C.L.

BOSTON:
GOSPEL BOOK AND TRACT DEPOSITORY,
2 HAMILTON PLACE.
1871.

BV4211
.M25
1871

Entered according to Act of Congress, in the year 1870, by the

Gospel Book and Tract Depository,

in the Office of the Librarian of Congress, at Washington.

THE

WORK OF PREACHING CHRIST.

To any Young Man entering the Christian Ministry.

My dear Brother in Christ:

You have been pursuing an education of mind and heart, preparatory to the office of a Minister of the Gospel. You are now upon the threshold of that sacred work. How far your ministry will be that of a faithful "steward of the mysteries of God" will depend on how far it shall be the faithful preaching of Jesus Christ. No inquiry, therefore, in the course of your preparation, or at this stage of your career, should seem to you of such importance as that which seeks a full understanding of the work of preaching Christ Jesus our Lord and Saviour, according as it is taught in the Scriptures, and set before us in the example of the Apostles. It is an inquiry with which the work of a minister of Christ will be more and more identified as he himself shall grow in the mind of his Master, and in a personal experience of the power and preciousness of the grace revealed in Him.

It is now forty years since I was called of God, and in His Providence permitted and enabled to take part in this holy ministry; and more and more have I learned the need that ministers should keep their teaching close to that one central and living theme, if they would have it honored of God as his power unto salvation; and the need, moreover, of constant and jealous watchfulness against the many snares and by-ways by which we may be led into such departures therefrom as will have the effect in part, if not entirely, of unevangelizing our work.

Allow me therefore, out of an earnest desire to promote your usefulness and happiness in the office to which you trust you are inwardly called by the Holy Ghost, to request your serious and prayerful attention to these pages, addressed to you by one whose age and experience of these things are his title to speak to you on such subjects.

I propose to you, as our starting-point, the question — What is embraced in the work of preaching Christ according to the mind of the Spirit, as exhibited in the teaching of His Word, and in the practice of His Apostles?

"Go preach the Gospel" were the words of our Lord to his Apostles, which conveyed to them and to us the whole weight and substance of the commission of His Ministers and Ambassadors. It was the unquestioning obedience of a simple and unhesitating faith to that one command, animated by an unquenchable love to its divine Author and to the souls He died to save, enlightened by the teaching and made mighty by the power of the Holy Ghost, that constituted all the vigor and efficacy of the ministry of the Apostles. It was thus that their weapons of warfare became "mighty through God," and achieved those stupendous victories of the truth over "the spirit that ruleth in the children of disobedience," which the weaker faith and more timid obedience of the Church in later days have so poorly imitated. And as in the beginning, so also in all times of the Christian dispensation, it has pleased God that sinners shall be brought "into captivity to the obedience of Christ," and made partakers of His salvation, by the obedience of His Ministers to that one original charge and command—"Preach the Gospel." Faith by hearing, Gospel faith by hearing Gospel truth, and such hearing by the preaching of the word of God, is His standing rule according to which He bestows His Spirit for the conviction, conversion, and sanctification of men.

But it is manifest from the Scriptures that the Apostles identified the Gospel with Christ; so that, in their view and practice, to preach the Gospel was neither more nor less than to preach Christ. The record which, in a few words, describes their ministry is, that, "daily in the temple and in every house they ceased not to teach and preach Jesus Christ." St. Paul to the Romans defines the whole Gospel by saying that it is "concerning Jesus Christ."* The employment of his two years' imprisonment at Rome was all comprehended in "teaching those things which concern the Lord Jesus." And his whole ministry was given unto him, he testifies, that he "might preach the unsearchable riches of Christ." As he could say, "For me to live is Christ," so for him to preach was Christ. To him Christ and the Gospel were one.

* Rom. i. 3.

But we must here note the chief feature in their preaching of Christ. They omitted nothing pertaining to Him; but there was one thing on which, more than anything else, they very particularly and emphatically dwelt. They took great pains to set forth the Lord Jesus in all that He was and is; in person and office, as once on earth and now in heaven; His preëxistent glory with the Father, His incarnation and humiliation in our nature, His death, resurrection, and intercession; all His love, all His promises, all His commandments; so that there was no part of the whole counsel of God "concerning His Son Jesus Christ" which they kept back. But manifestly there was one event in His history, one work amidst all His works, which stood in their view as the great event and work, around which they gathered the force of their testimony, as its central light and power — to which they made all that went before it look forward for consummation, and all that succeeded it look back as to its foundation, and on the faithful declaration of which, with its immediate connections, they very especially rested the faithfulness of their work as preachers of the Gospel. No doubt you anticipate me. Such passages of the Apostles arise to your minds, as, "We preach Christ crucified;" "I determined not to know anything among you (while declaring unto you the testimony of God) save Jesus Christ and Him crucified;" "God forbid that I should glory save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ;" "For the preaching of the cross is to them that perish foolishness, but unto us which are saved it is the power of God." They preached Christ —but as Christ crucified. They said continually, like John the Baptist, "Behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world," but it was the "Lamb slain"— Christ in His death—bearing "our sins in His own body on the tree," that they pointed to. They rejoiced in everything pertaining to their Lord, from His birth at Bethlehem to His present glory at the Father's right hand; but the one thing in which they rejoiced so supremely was His cross. Of the two sacraments ordained of Christ for his Church, that which alone goes with the believer, to be renewed and repeated all along the way of his earthly life, has for its great object to "show the Lord's death until He come." It was a great lesson which the Lord thus taught us as to how we must preach Him. His Apostles therefore became in speech what that sacrament is in symbol, constantly showing the Lord's death as the sinner's life. Thus, when they spoke of the Christian's race for "the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus" — and when they exhorted us while in that contest to be always "looking unto Jesus" — the special aspect in which they presented Him was as enduring the cross. And I need not here say that their sense of the supreme importance in their ministry of the death of Christ, was because they beheld therein the one only and the one all-sufficient sacrifice and propitiation, the vicarious atonement, for the sins of the whole world; that great work of God wherein he laid in Zion, for a sure foundation, the precious corner-stone, on which the sinner believing shall not be confounded. It is all contained in one verse — "Christ hath once suffered for sins, the just for the unjust, to bring us to God." * And again, "Christ hath redeemed us from the curse of the law, being made a curse for us." †

Thus we have our lesson and example. In the way the Apostles preached the Gospel we must try to preach it. As they preached Christ, so must we. God forbid that we should glory in anything else as ministers of the word. Preachers of Christ, according to the mind of Christ — ah, how all honors, all satisfaction in our work, will perish but that! When our stewardship is to be accounted for, and we are just departing, and the veil, half drawn aside, discloses what we are to meet and what to be forever, how then shall we care for praise of learning, or praise of speech, or any vapors of men's applause! But then, to have "the testimony of our conscience that in simplicity and godly sincerity, — not with enticing words of man's wisdom," — we have made it our life-business and our heart-pleasure to "teach and preach Jesus Christ," as they did whom He gave to be our examples, having ourselves first learned his preciousness to our own souls, oh, what consolation and thankfulness with which to die!

* 1 Pet. iii. 18. † Gal. iii. 13.

Evidently then, my brethren, it is a most serious question to be always studying, how we may so proclaim the truth committed to us in Holy Scripture, that in the sense of the Apostles it may be said of us in our whole ministry, that "we preach Christ crucified." To this we devote this address. Many are the failures — many the egregious failures. Sometimes it seems as if the preacher could preach just as he does if Christ and His work were a mere incident in religion, a name, and little more — answering now and then as a convenience to a sentence; introduced occasionally, because, under some texts, it is not easily avoided, but never as the root and foundation out of which our whole ministry proceeds. But what awful condemnation to be thus essentially defective at the very heart of the great work committed to us! Nothing can in the least atone for it. You might as well attempt to turn night into day, by lighting a candle as a substitute for the sun. Our ministry is all darkness, emptiness, and impotence; all condemnation to us, all delusion to those who hear us, all dishonor to the grace of God, whatever the breath of man may say of it, except as it is pervaded, illumined, filled with the testimony of Christ as once the sacrifice for sin, crucified and slain, now the glorified and ever-living intercessor for all that come unto God by Him.

There are many ways of approaching more or less to that attainment without ever reaching it. Some of the most common we will endeavor to state.

It is very possible to preach a great deal of important religious truth, and so that there shall be no admixture of important error in doctrine or precept — yea, truth having an important relation to Christ and His office, — and yet not to preach Christ. The defect will be, not in the presence of what should not be there, but in the absence of that which is necessary to give all the truth delivered, the character of "truth as it is in Jesus." Such absence, when nevertheless all is true, may be more destructive to the Gospel character of the preaching, than even the introduction of some positive error. The preaching may be very earnest. It may contain much that is affecting and deeply impressive — strong emotions may be stirred in the hearers. The earnest inquiry may be excited, What must we do? And yet the preaching may wholly fail in giving any such distinct answer to that question, as will turn the attention of the inquirer to Christ as all his refuge. You may say a great deal about and around the Gospel, and never preach the Gospel. Religious truths are not the Gospel, except in proportion as, like John the Baptist, they point to the Lamb of God. For example — suppose you preach on the vanity of the world; the uncertainty of life; the awfulness of death unprepared for; the tremendous events of the judgment-day; the lit. tle profit of gaining the whole world and losing the soul; suppose you enlarge on the necessity and blessedness of a religious life, and the happiness of the saved. Does it follow that you have preached the Gospel, or any part of it? If deep impressions are made, and serious inquiries excited, does it follow that Christ is preached? Such topics unquestionably belong most legitimately to our ministry; they are important parts of the truth given us to enforce; but they are entirely subordinate and preliminary. They are not the distinctive seed of the word from which God has ordained that newness of life shall spring. They are rather the plough and the harrow to open and stir the ground, that it may receive the seed of life. You may spend all your time in such work — not omitting to sprinkle your discourses with the oft-repeated name of Christ and with much Gospel language; and just because there is no pervading exhibition of Christ, in His work of Justification by His righteousness, and of Sanctification by His Spirit, given so pointedly and plainly that whosoever will may understand, you may never attain to the honor, in the sight of God, of teaching and preaching Jesus Christ, whatever the estimate of those who have not learned to discriminate between truth that is religious, and truth that is not only religious, but distinctively Gospel-truth; who know not the difference between such preaching as makes the hearer feel some spiritual want, and that which also tells him what he wants, and where and how he is to find it. The hearer who has learned Christ as his lesson of heart and life, of hope and peace, and knows nothing as precious to his soul, but as it leads him to Jesus on the cross of sacrifice, and on the throne of intercession, Jesus in His invitations and promises, Jesus in His grace to help, His righteousness to justify, and His power to sanctify, will feel that in all that ministry "one thing is needful," — and that one thing, the very thing on which all its Gospel character hinges — CHRIST.

But let us advance a little farther. You may preach with faithfulness and plainness the strictness and holiness of the law, how it enters with its requirements into the thoughts and affections of the heart, pronouncing condemnation on the sinner, and bringing us all in guilty before God. There may be no shrinking from the fullest exposition of the Scriptures concerning the end of the impenitent; no lack of earnest calls to repentance, nor of solemn declarations of the necessity of a new heart, and of holiness if we would see the Lord. Still more: the office of Christ as the only Saviour, and His merits as the only plea, may be introduced not unfrequently, and yet may there be a great lack of such distinct holding up of Christ crucified, as Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness before the dying Israelites for all to see and live — such presentation of God's great remedy for every man's necessities as belongs to the consistency, simplicity, and fullness of the work committed to the minister of the Gospel. While speaking much of duty, the grace to enable us to do it, may not be proportionably presented. While the need of personal holiness, and of a new heart as its essential basis, may be strongly urged, you may keep almost entirely out of sight the work of the Spirit of Life in Christ Jesus, from whom all holy desires, and all newness of heart and life proceed. While the penalties of sin may be kept in full view, the fullness, and tenderness, and earnestness of the invitations and promises of Christ to the sinner turning unto God, may be very dimly exhibited. That great lesson, which we have need to be always studying, may have been but little learned—how to preach the law as showing our need of the righteousness of Christ, and how to preach the Gospel as establishing and honoring the law; the one to convince of sin and condemnation, the other as providing a deliverance so complete, that to the believer there is no condemnation; the one as taking away all pleas derived from ourselves, the other as furnishing a most perfect and prevailing plea in the mediation of Christ; the law as giving the rule of life, the Gospel as giving the power of life, yea, life from death, in Jesus Christ; the law to humble us under a consciousness of an utter beggary before God, the Gospel as directing us to Him in whom it pleased the Father that all fullness should dwell.

Again. It may be that doctrine immediately concerning the Lord Jesus, and bringing His person and office into view, may be much introduced. We may take opportunity to speak of the infinite dignity of His being; the mystery of His incarnation; the humiliation, and love, and grace of His coming in our nature; His tenderness, and compassion, and power to save; the perfectness of His example, and the depth of His sufferings. Indeed, everything revealed concerning Him may at times be found in our teaching, without error, and in each particular, as it stands by itself, without serious defect. But there may be still an important deficiency. The proportion of truth may not be kept. There is a proportion of parts in the whole body of Gospel truth just as in our own bodies. We must omit none of the parts, but put each in its right relation to all the rest. To fail in this, so that, while we embrace all, we deform all by a disproportionate exaltation of some and depression of others, may be just as destructive of the Gospel character of our ministry, just as confusing and misleading, as if we omitted some truths and perverted others. For example, you may preach Christ in various aspects; but Christ crucified, the great Sacrifice of propitiation, though not omitted, may not have that high place, that central place, that all-controlling place, that place of the head-stone of the corner, which is necessary to its right adjustment to all parts of the system of faith. You may preach the incarnation of Christ in all its truth as a separate event, and yet in great error as regards its relation to other events, making it so unduly prominent that His death shall be made to appear comparatively subordinate and unessential,—the means exalted above the end,—the preparation of the body of Christ for sacrifice being made of more importance and more effective in our salvation, than His offering of that body on the cross. But the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, which we carry with us all the way of our journey, as our great confession, and joy, and glory, was appointed to show, as oft as we eat that bread and drink that cup, not the Lord's birth, or life, but "the Lord's death until He come."

You may preach all of Christ's work as well as person, and all in due proportion of parts, and yet some other vital truth essentially connected, may be so disproportionately presented as to create in the whole a most important defect. You have exhibited the foundation which God hath laid in Zion. The question remains, how the sinner is to avail himself of that foundation. He is to build thereon. But how? The Apostle answers, "He that believeth on Him shall not be confounded." We build by faith. We cannot preach Christ without preaching on that by which we become "partakers of Christ." Confusion, indistinctness, feebleness, deficiency there, must produce the same effect throughout the whole Gospel. If faith, in its nature, office, efficacy, and distinctive operation and fruits, be kept in a place so obscure, so subordinate, or taught so confusedly, that either it is wholly out of sight or hid in a crowd of other things, placed in the outer court of the temple instead of immediately by the altar of sacrifice, as the one instrumental grace by which the sinner partakes of the "Lamb of God;" if the works which are its fruits, be so confounded with itself that the grace by which we are "rooted and grounded" in Christ, is made of no more influence in our participation of Him, than the several works of righteousness which grow out of its life, and follow upon the participation of Christ through its agency, — then is the relative adjustment of truth most seriously spoiled and deformed.

Lastly, under this head of our inquiry, it may be that occasionally in a discourse, now and then, the setting forth of Christ is satisfactory in point of doctrine, and the proportion of truth. But it may be only occasionally thus, and only when the text so obliges, according to rhetorical propriety, that we cannot avoid it. But such texts may not be chosen very often. Passing from subject to subject, the preacher comes, from time to time, to one which necessarily leads to the manifestation of Christ, in some leading feature of His grace and salvation; and then all may be well done, and calculated to enlighten a mind hungering for the truth. But, meanwhile, you may hear many a discourse which contains scarcely more of anything distinctive of the Gospel, or pertaining to Christ, except perhaps His name sometimes introduced, than if it were some other religion than Christ's of which the preacher is the minister. And in the general course of his work, we may look in vain after such evident fondness of heart for views which most intimately and directly look unto Jesus; such habitual feeding of the flock in pastures watered by the river that proceedeth out of the throne of God and the Lamb; such strong tendency, when subjects not directly testifying of Christ must be handled, to keep them as near to Him as possible, and to return from them as soon as possible to others of a nearer neighborhood to the cross; such desire to illuminate all subjects with light from "the face of Jesus Christ" as proves the preacher's determination "to know nothing among men but Jesus Christ and Him crucified." We miss that habitualness of the testimony of Christ, that special love for all the region round about Gethsemane and Calvary, the atonement and the intercession, and the great gifts of the Spirit purchased thereby; we miss that constant tracing of all spiritual life and consolation, in its every influence and fruit, to Christ as the life, and that careful binding of all spiritual affections and duties upon him for support and strength, as the vine-dresser trains his vine upon its trellis, which appears so remarkably in the teaching of the Apostles.

Again. There is a way of preaching, which, in a dry, doctrinal sense, may avoid all the defects we have adverted to, and yet in a very serious measure include them all. It seems to be formed on the idea that it is inapplicable, in these days of advancement, to preach the simple Gospel in its own simplicity, surrounding and setting forth its truths with scriptural illustrations and associations, so that it shall be not only the Gospel in the substance of its doctrine, but the Gospel in its nature, form, visage, drapery, and savor. The idea of the preacher seems to be, that such preaching would be considered antiquated and worn out; something requiring more originality, more depth of philosophical investigation, is demanded, to make people hear the Gospel. You must make it look as little like the Gospel, as is consistent with preserving substantially the Gospel doctrine. The preacher preaches himself. To make the hearer regard him as a man of thought and depth, elevated by education above that simplicity of teaching which he supposes anybody can attain to, he affects the philosopher, deals in abstractions, dissociates the Master's message from the authority and mind of the Master, and the simplicity of His inspired word; as if the wise only, such as are capable of appreciating great efforts of mind, were expected to understand. He seeks to use a "wisdom of words," which St. Paul rejected, "lest the cross of Christ should be made of none effect." To prevent the preaching of the cross from being "foolishness" to the natural man, who "receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God" "because they are spiritually discerned," he so departs from the preaching of the cross as St. Paul gave it, that his preaching is not, and cannot expect to be, "in demonstration of the Spirit and of power." They that hear to be pleased with a show of mind are perhaps gratified. They that come to be elevated in their affections to things above, and to be fed with the bread of heaven, are sorely disappointed. They came to see Jesus. They have seen only that man in the pulpit, and his empty abstractions. They asked bread, and he gave them a stone. There is much of such wretched work in various degrees; and some people have become, in their appetite, so reduced to it, that if a minister be not of that sort, they turn away from him, as one who is not deep enough for their minds. Away with such chaff, in view of the day when "the fire shall try every man's work of what sort it is."

We have thus endeavored to indicate some of the paths by which, without delivering anything untrue, and while delivering much important truth, we may come short of the duty under consideration. We proceed to consider how we may fulfil it.

What is it to preach Christ?

We have a great example in our Lord's own teaching. When, after His resurrection, He met the two disciples on the way to Emmaus, and found them in such darkness and doubt concerning Himself, it is written that, "beginning at Moses, and all the prophets, He expounded unto them, in all the Scriptures, the things concerning Himself;" the things concerning Himself. The office of the Ministry is so to expound the Scriptures in all their parts as to bring out the things concerning that glorious One, Himself. St. Paul therefore said that he was "separated unto the Gospel of God concerning His Son Jesus Christ."* To teach sinners to know Christ, and to "count all things but loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Him," looking to the power of the Holy Ghost to communicate through the truth, which we give only in the letter, that spiritual and saving knowledge which only God giveth, is the general expression of our duty.

* Rom. i. 1–3.

But in the Gospel "concerning our Lord Jesus Christ," that is, in the circle of doctrines, and duties, and promises, and blessings which constitute the message of great salvation in Him, there is, as we have already hinted, a system of parts mutually related and dependent, all in perfect harmony, none so obscure or remote as to be of no importance to the right representation of the whole. That system, like that of our sun, has a centre, by which all the parts are held in place, from which all their light and life proceed, and around which all revolve. You cannot exhibit the system of truth and duty till you have made known that central light and power; nor can you make known that power in all its truth without exhibiting those surrounding and dependent parts of doctrine and precept. That central sun of light and life is Christ. All of Gospel truth and duty, of consolation and strength, abides in Christ — derives from Christ, and glorifies

Christ — and must be so presented, or else it is divorced from its only life, and loses its Gospel character. He is the True Vine, and all parts of Gospel truth are branches in Him. Let such truth be presented without that connection; then its character as truth may remain, but its character for "truth as it is in Jesus" is lost. Its vitality is gone. Fruit of life in Christ Jesus it cannot produce. It is just as true and important concerning religious truth as concerning religious men, that "the branch cannot bring forth fruit except it abide in the vine."

Now, what is the best mode of setting forth this system of grace? Where shall we begin? Shall we first take up the elements of religion, the outsides of the circle; reasoning upward from general truths to the more particular; explaining and enforcing ordinances and institutions of the Church as our road of approach to the Head and Life of the Church; confining attention to means of grace before we have directed our hearers to the grace itself in the great Fountain-head; and thus gradually, and after a long process of preparatory work, arriving at last at the person, and mission, and sacrifice of Christ? But we must remember who they are whom we are thus keeping so long in the cold and in the dark. They are sinners under the condemnation of the law of God. They are dying sinners. How brief the time of some of them to learn, you know not. You have no time to spend on preliminaries before you have introduced them to the great salvation. What they have most need to know is, He who came to seek and to save the lost — how they may find Him, and what are the terms of His Salvation. Begin at once with Christ — "Behold the Lamb of God" is the voice. There is no light till that Light appears. The icy bondage of the sinner's heart yields not till that Sun is risen. Astronomers, when they teach the solar system, begin with the sun. Thence to the related and dependent orbits is easy. So the Apostles taught. See how, when they had the whole system of the Gospel, as distinguished from that of the law, to teach the Jews, — the whole outward and visible of the Christian Church, as well as all the inward and spiritual of the Christian life, all so new, and strange, and unpalatable to a people so unprepared, so entangled with traditionary aversions and deep-seated perversions, — see how they leaped over all preliminaries, and began at once with Christ and Him crucified, the sacrifice of His death, "and the power of his resurrection." At once they broke ground and set up the banner of their ministry there. Just at the point where the pride of the sinner would most revolt, and the wisdom of man was most at fault, and the ignorance of Jew and Gentile was most complete, where the Jew saw only a stumbling-block and the Greek only foolishness, there they opened their message. "I delivered unto you, first of all (said St. Paul), that which I also received, how that Christ died for our sins, according to the Scriptures." * They could not wait to root out prejudice, plant first principles, approach the intrenched power "that ruleth in the children of disobedience," by the strategy of man's wisdom, when they knew that Christ was the great "power of God unto salvation." At once to open the windows and let in the sun was their way of giving light to them that sat in darkness. At once to show the amazing love of God to sinners in not sparing His own Son, but delivering Him up for us all, was their way to draw the sinner's heart to God. Human device would have said, as it has often said, in substance, Make philosophy prepare the way. Clothe your teaching in robes of man's wisdom. Keep back the offence of the cross till you have first conciliated the respect of your hearers by a show of human learning and reasoning. And when your Master must be preached directly, don't begin at His death. Speak of His life, its benevolence, its beauty. Compare His moral precepts with those of heathen sages. Christ as the example and the teacher is your great theme. "No (said St. Paul), lest the cross should be of none effect," "that your faith should not stand in the wisdom of men, but in the power of God." They remembered the words of their Lord, "I, if I be lifted up, will draw all men unto me." Lifted up on the cross He had now been. Lifted up as Christ crucified for us, in the sight of the whole world, by the ministry of the Gospel, He was next to be. Such was God's argument with sinful men.

* 1 Cor. xv. 3.

They believed, and therefore preached. God gave the increase, and wonderful was the harvest.

Thus, dear brethren, we have our lesson. We must begin as well as end with Christ, and always abide in Him, for the life and power of our ministry, just as for the peace and joy of our own souls. But having thus begun, what remains? It is the revealed office of the Holy Ghost, as the Sanctifier and the Comforter, to glorify Christ. "He shall glorify me," said the Lord. But how? "He shall take of mine, and show it unto you." It is our office also, under the power of the Holy Ghost, to glorify Christ in all His person and relations to us, and by the same method, namely, to take of what pertains to Him, and show it unto men. Whatever pertains to Him we are to show. We must "expound in all the Scriptures the things concerning Himself." Of those things we will attempt a brief sketch and outline, but it must be only the merest outline, and that very imperfect.

We must preach Christ in regard to the glory of the Godhead which He had with the Father before the world was. We cannot exhibit the death of the cross to which He became obedient, without considering the infinite majesty of the throne from which He descended. We must keep the connection which the Apostle has given us between the glory of our Lord before He came in the flesh, and His humiliation in the flesh. You remember that "He became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross," is introduced by "being in the form of God, He thought it not robbery to be equal with God." *

* Phil. ii. 6–8.

In the same connection is the Incarnation and Birth of our Lord. Very near are the mysteries of Bethlehem to those of Calvary. We cannot tell how Jesus bore our sins without telling how He took our nature. To show that He could stand in man's place under the law, we must show that He was made very man. Hence, in the Apostle's account, between the form of God from all eternity and the obedience unto death, the connecting event is, "He was made in the likeness of man." We must take care that in a just zeal for His divinity, we do not impair or put in a place of comparative unimportance His humanity. The one is as essential to the Gospel as the other — the perfect man as the perfect God. Our confession glories as much in the Word "made flesh," as in the truth that the same Word "was God." In beholding and showing the great salvation, we are to consider as of equal necessity thereto "the Man Christ Jesus," and that He was, and is, "Jehovah our Righteousness." In the earliest ages of Satan's attack upon the integrity of the Gospel, the heresies did not more assail the essential divinity, than the real humanity, of Christ; knowing that if He were not perfect man, the sacrifice for man's sins were as unavailing as if He had been only man.

The assaults of these present times are indicative, we think, of the same strategy. How carefully and minutely do the Scriptures exhibit our Lord as man in all that is of man, while at the same time we are made to behold His glory, "as of the only begotten of the Father, full of grace and truth"! "In the fullness of time, God sent forth His Son, made of a woman," that in all time and to all eternity, He might be "made unto us of God," through His death, "wisdom, and righteousness, and sanctification, and redemption."

In setting forth our Lord's atoning death, we must keep in full view His perfect life — that suffering life between the cradle and the cross, in which His obedience to the law, completed by the endurance of its curse for us, was all wrought out. He was the Lamb without spot, that He might be the sacrifice all-sufficient. It was His meetness as the purchase-price of our redemption, and at the same time the pattern of the mind which must be in us to make us meet to be partakers of that redemption. Christ our example of holiness is a most important part of the setting forth of Christ as our foundation of hope. There was one hour in His life for which He came into this world;* but every hour while

* John xii. 23, and xvii. 1.

He was in this world, as leading to that, exhibited the mind that was in Christ Jesus, and which must be also in us.

In preaching Christ crucified, let us take care that we avoid the mistake, not unfrequently made, of terminating our representation almost entirely with the crucifixion — as if the slaying of the sacrifice completed the oblation of the sacrifice; forgetting the office of the High Priest to enter within the veil with the blood of sprinkling, carrying the sacrifice before the mercy-seat, there to appear in the presence of God for us, and thus to "obtain eternal redemption for us." "Christ crucified" is not merely Christ on the cross, but Christ also "on the right hand of the throne of God," as having "endured the cross." That throne is called "the throne of the Lamb," and the redeemed in heaven are represented as praising "the Lamb that was slain." The preaching of Christ crucified goes necessarily into all that Christ did and obtained for us after, and in consequence of, His crucifixion. His resurrection, ascension, and exaltation to head-ship over all things, and to be a Priest forever over the house of God, are great themes, vitally associated with what immediately preceded them, forming the essential connection between what was finished "once for all" when Jesus died, and what is yet to be finished "for all that come unto God by Him," now that He "ever liveth." We must preach Christ in His ever-living intercession — Christ the High Priest above with the incense and the blood — or we leave incomplete the view of Christ crucified. When He cried, "It is finished," and "gave up the ghost," it was the slaying of the sacrifice; it was the suffering of the Lamb of God for us; it was the being "made a curse for us," that was then finished. "There remaineth no more sacrifice for sin;" but there does remain the perpetual oblation of the one finished sacrifice. Our hope stops not at the cross, but "entereth to that within the veil, whither Jesus our forerunner is also, for us, entered, made a High Priest forever after the order of Melchizedek." Thither, therefore, our ministry must also enter. Too often does, what in other respects is well as Gospel preaching, come short of that mark. Our preaching follows Christ in His resurrection, and perhaps in His ascension; but do we sufficiently place before the faith of the sinner, for his prayers and his hopes to rest on, for his consolation and peace to drink of, when he strives to come unto God, Jesus as now the living, glorious Intercessor, showing in His hands the print of the nails of the sacrifice of propitiation, and bearing in His heart all the necessities of every believer? When we exhort to the running the race with patience, "looking unto Jesus," do we sufficiently direct the eye of the hearer to Jesus, the glorified, in His present office and work for us? Remember that when the Apostle said, "He is able to save to the uttermost," he added, as the essential evidence, "seeing He ever liveth to make intercession for us."

I must not pass from this immediate neighborhood of the great sacrifice without a few words about its nature. To speak of it as a sacrifice for sin in such general terms only as leave room for the most unreal, figurative, and accommodated sense, is to come far short of our duty, and of what the special tendency of error in these days demands. When we administer the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, we "show the Lord's death." Let us take care that when we show the same in words, we do not come short of the teaching of the Sacrament concerning it. The Protestant Episcopal church interprets that teaching with studied precision, in her communion office, in reference to errors prevalent when that office was framed.

She calls the sacrifice "a full, perfect, and sufficient sacrifice, oblation, and satisfaction for the sins of the whole world." She teaches us to pray for remission of sins through faith in the blood of Christ. We must imitate that precision in reference to errors now propagated. Besides the perfectness and sufficiency of the sacrifice, in opposition to those who would add to it, we must insist strongly and pointedly on its strictly propitiatory and vicarious nature, in opposition to those who would destroy it. Under such strong texts as "Christ hath redeemed us from the curse of the law, being made a curse for us;" * "He hath made Him to be sin for us who knew no sin," † we must teach Christ as standing literally in our stead under the condemnation of our sins; all our guilt laid upon Him; He the condemned one for us, that we might be accounted the righteous in Him. I see not how we can come short of such a sacrifice, and yet preach Christ crucified, according to the Scriptures.‡

* Gal. iii. 13. † 2 Cor. v. 21.

‡ The strictly substitutionary character of Christ's sacrifice for our sins, I consider of the most vital importance to be clearly taught, if we would satisfy the language of Scripture, or do our duty to God and man. "He was made sin for us;" by which I understand that He stood for us under the law, by imputation of our sins, bearing all our

Closely allied to our Lord's priesthood, offering the perpetual oblation of His sacrifice, is His office as the great Prophet and Teacher of His Church. "In Him are hid all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge." He is "made unto us of God wisdom," as well as "righteousness." Christ crucified, is Christ the Light as well as the Life. To His invitation, "Come unto me and I will give you rest," is joined the precept, "Learn of me." The great subject of saving learning is Christ Himself, and He is the only effectual teacher of that learning. They that have "learned Christ," so as truly to know Him, are declared to have "been taught by Him the truth as it is in Jesus." Whatever our advantages of human teaching, even of the truest exposition of God's inspired word, all is powerless spiritually to enlighten us in the knowledge of God and of Christ, till He who speaks as never man spake, shall add to it the teaching of His Spirit, so that we shall learn, not merely by the Scriptures, but from and of Him. Christ as "the truth" as well as "the way," "the wisdom" as well as "the righteousness of God," the living "Word" as well as the sins, and as perfectly identified and charged with them, as it was possible for one "who knew no sin" in Himself to be.

ever-living Priest and Intercessor, must be showed in our ministry, if we preach Christ crucified, not merely as once on the cross, but as now in His glory.

But Christ crucified is not only "the righteousness of God" and "the wisdom of God," but "the power of God unto salvation." "Him hath God exalted to be a Prince," that he may be a Saviour, "mighty to save." "Unto the Son, He saith, Thy throne, O God, is forever and ever; a sceptre of righteousness is the sceptre of Thy kingdom." Christ as King, in a glorious sovereignty over all things in heaven and earth, we must declare. It is the crowning aspect of Christ, the crucified. It is "the THRONE of the Lamb that was slain," before which the multitudes without number of the saved in heaven are represented as ascribing "power, and riches, and strength, and glory, and honor, and blessing." By His death He purchased, as Mediator, a glorious kingdom of redemption. At His ascension He went to receive it. There now He reigns over all His people in earth and heaven, and over all else, for His people. When He shall come again, it will be in the glory of that kingdom. It was a grand introduction to that precious invitation, "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden," and that attending precept, "Take my yoke, and learn of me," when he said in the verse next before, "All things are delivered unto me of my Father." *

It was when He was in the humiliation and sufferings of the cross, that, as the great King, He stretched forth the sceptre of His power to the malefactor at His side, and gave him repentance and remission of sins, and opened unto him the kingdom of heaven. And now that, having endured the cross, He is set down at the right hand of the throne of God, to reign forever and ever, He hath all power to make good all His promises to those who receive Him, and to punish with everlasting destruction those who reject Him. There is no part of that ancient hymn of Christian praise, the Te Deum laudamus, that more lifts up the worship of the heart than these two sentences, "Thou art the King of Glory, O Christ!" "When Thou hadst overcome the sharpness of death, Thou didst open the kingdom of heaven to all believers." It is as King of Glory, that He freely receives every sinner who seeks His salvation, writing the law of His kingdom in his heart, giving him victory over the enemies of his soul, making him triumphant in death,

* Matt. ix. 27.

and finally saying unto him from His throne, "Enter thou into the joy of thy Lord." It is as Christ crucified, and glorified, and "King of Saints," that He utters that promise of royal authority and power, "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame and am set down with my Father in His throne." *

Here, then, is another aspect in which we must lift up the Lord Jesus in our ministry. We must not let it be forgotten that, in all the tenderness of His invitations and promises, He speaks "as one that hath authority," not only to make them good, but to punish their rejection. The invitations of His grace are the commandments of His throne, to be answered for at His bar. Hence the preaching of Christ crucified, ceases not till it has exhibited "the judgment-seat of Christ." It must be noted that when the Apostle says, "Knowing the terror of the Lord, we persuade men," he is speaking of the terror of our Lord Jesus in His day of judgment.† That day is called "the great day of the wrath of the Lamb." ‡ Why the wrath of the Lamb? Why, but to keep still in view the great sacrifice of atonement? to teach that Christ on the throne of judgment is Christ that was crucified? that the chief question of that day will be, whether we have accepted or neglected the great salvation purchased by His blood; and the chief terror of that day will be the vengeance of that blood upon its rejection. While we love to speak of the blessedness of "the saints in light" as "joint heirs with Christ," we cannot discharge our whole duty as preachers of Christ, unless we speak of the heritage of those who "receive His grace in vain." You have a most impressive example in St. Paul, who, knowing nothing in his ministry "but Jesus Christ and Him crucified," pictured so solemnly that day when, coming "to be glorified in His saints, and to be admired in all them that believe," the Lord Jesus "shall be revealed from heaven in flaming fire, taking vengeance on them that obey not the Gospel, who shall be punished with everlasting destruction from the presence of the Lord and from the glory of His power."*

* Rev. iii. 21. † 2 Cor. v. 10, 11. ‡ Rev. vi. 17.

But the preaching of Christ as the crucified, extends through all the inheritance of His people forever and ever. It deserves your particular remark how carefully, in many places, the Scriptures, in speaking of the actual condition of the redeemed in heaven, and its connection with the Lord Jesus as its author, source, and substance, so speak of it as to keep not only Christ on the throne, but Christ crucified, Christ the sacrifice, in most conspicuous view. This is especially seen wherever He is spoken of in His glory as "the Lamb," which of course means the Lamb of sacrifice — the antitype of the paschal lamb and of the daily sacrifice of the law; the fulfilment of Isaiah's prophecy, "He is led as a lamb to the slaughter," "wounded for our transgressions." Thus the multitude which no man can number, who stand in white raiment and with palms of victory before the throne, are represented as "before the Lamb," and their adoration is in ascribing "salvation to the Lamb," and notice is carefully drawn to their having "washed their robes in the blood of the Lamb," and all that high communion and blessedness is called "the marriage-supper of the Lamb," and in all that dwelling-place "the Lamb is the light thereof," and He that "feeds them and leads them to living fountains of water" is "the Lamb which is in the midst of the throne," and "the river of water of life," representing their whole felicity, proceeds "out of the throne of the Lamb," and the book of citizenship of the New Jerusalem, in which are written the names of all that are to inhabit there, is "the book of life of the Lamb slain from the foundation of the world." * Most evidently the intent of all this is to carry adoring thoughts of the sacrifice of the cross into our every thought of heavenly happiness, and to represent the heir of that felicity as never forgetting that great price; never seeing the Lord in His glory without seeing Him as once "crucified and slain;" never ascending any height of "the heavenly places," or drinking at any stream of their blessedness, without seeing in Christ not only "the Author and the Finisher," but all in Him as "the Lamb slain," as He that "liveth and was dead," Christ the propitiation, Christ crucified. Atonement by sacrifice is written all over the heritage of the righteous. It is the chorus of every song of the saints in light. All heaven echoes with "Thou wast slain, and hast redeemed us to God by Thy blood." † So must it be in all our preaching concerning the happiness of the saved — Christ the purchaser and dispenser, but the glory of His cross never separated from the glory of His throne. When we "shall see Him as he is," we shall not cease to think of Him as he was.

* 2 Thess. i. 7–10.

* Rev. xiii. 8 and xx. 12, 14. † Rev. v. 9.

Here a word about our representations of what is the happiness of the redeemed in heaven — what constitutes it. There is a chilling effect of many books and sermons on that subject — so much generality, so little about what the Scriptures place so above all; so much made of the subordinate and accessory features, the pastures and the flowers of the heavenly land, and so little of the Sun that gives them all their beauty and life; as if you should speak of the garden of Eden, and make more of what God planted, than of the presence and communion of God therein — not remembering what Paradise in all its beauty became to man when that communion was withdrawn. Christ is carefully to be preached, as being Himself, in His glory and communion, the heaven of His people; as well as, in His humiliation and sacrifice, its purchase-price. How striking is the testimony of the Scriptures to this point! Has Jesus gone away to prepare a place for us in His Father's house? His promise is, "I will come again, and receive you unto myself, that where I am there ye may be also." Does He pray His Father in behalf of the happiness of His people? The prayer is, "that they may be with me where I am, and behold my glory." While it doth not appear what we shall be "as sons of God" and "joint heirs with Christ," St. John speaks of one thing that we do know. It is that "we shall be like Him, and see Him as He is." Does Jesus promise to them that overcome, that they "shall eat of the hidden manna?" That manna is Himself. "I am that bread of life." Is heaven described as a glorious city of habitation? "The Lamb is the temple," and "the light thereof." Hath it a river of water of life, and on either side of the tree of life? All that river comes forth from "the throne of the Lamb." Christ is "the Finisher of our faith" in this, that He is, in Himself, the consummation of our hope; His presence, His communion, His everlasting love being the prize of our high calling, and the goal of our race. We come to Him now, and He is our peace. We go to be with him forever, and He is our glory. Ask the way to heaven; we say, Christ. Ask where heaven is; we say, where Christ is. Ask what heaven is; we answer, what Christ is. Thus preach we Christ crucified, whenever we speak according to the Scriptures of what constitutes the life eternal of the sinner, "redeemed by the blood of the Lamb."

But we must take good heed that we do not so speak of our Lord in His heavenly power and glory, as not to give due place to His ever-present personal ministry, in and to His Church on earth. The impression is too prevalent that here, in our duties, and wants, and prayers, we have only a Saviour and Helper afar off.

The precious assurance of the Scriptures is, that we have a Saviour so near to every one of us, that He is "a very present help" — so present that nothing can separate us from Him; that nothing but unbelief ever intervenes between our wants and His fullness, neither space nor time, nor unworthiness nor weakness — so present that He is ever at the door, waiting to be received, or beneath our weakness, ready to be leaned on. No presence is so "very present" as that of the ever-living Christ, in the power of His Spirit to every heart that seeks Him — enlightening, guiding, comforting, upholding, drawing sinners to Himself, making Himself known to them, giving efficacy to means of grace: whatever the instruments, He the only power. "I am the Good Shepherd." All is comprehended in that declaration. As the Good Shepherd, He is the present Shepherd; so present to each of the flock, that He "calleth every one by name, and leadeth him out." O, what a help and comfort it is when we get a full comprehension and an abiding impression of that living, loving, all-powerful presence! How it strengthens the Minister of the Gospel! How it lifts up the heart of the Christian!

In this connection, the faithful preaching of Christ will keep in great prominence that aspect of Himself which He, with such emphasis, when He spake of Himself as "the living bread — the bread of God," of whom the manna in the wilderness was the type, and the bread of our Eucharist is the Sacrament; Christ the present daily life of his people; they abiding in Him by faith, He in them by His Spirit; all their life as children of God now, all their hopes of life forever, depending on that habitual communion — the vine and the branches. The more we ourselves enjoy of that abiding, the better shall we know how to teach it. Nowhere does mere book-knowledge of what is given us to preach assist us less.

When we speak of Christ as "the life," fulfilling the type of the manna, let us take care that we set in clear view, not only our dependence, but His freeness. It was one prominent aspect of that "spiritual meat," of which "all our fathers" of the Church in the wilderness ate, that all classes and conditions of people partook of it alike, and all with equal and perfect freeness. It lay all around the camp, as accessible to one as another. Moses, nor Aaron, nor any priest or ruler had any privilege at that table which the humblest Israelite had not. The priesthood had no office of intervention between the hungry and that bread. Whosoever will, let him take and eat, was the proclamation. Let us take good heed that what we cannot deny in the type, be not narrowed or concealed in the antitype. Our text is, "Him that cometh to me, I will in no wise cast out."* And I do not know a text that contains more of the essence of the preaching of Christ in the richness and freeness of his salvation. O, let us take care that our ministry shall keep full in the sight of men that open way, that free access, that directness of coming, not to some mere symbolical representation, but to the very present Christ, in all his tenderness of love and power to save. Ordinances, ministers, are sadly out of place, no matter how divinely appointed for certain uses, when, instead of mere helps in coming to Christ, they are made, in any sense, conditions or terms of approach, so that the sinner gets to Christ only, or in any degree, by them. The light of the sun is not more free to every man that cometh into the world, than is the salvation of Jesus to every believing sinner. It is our business to be continually showing that precious truth; coming by faith, all the condition — Christ, the full and perfect salvation of all that come.

* John vi. 37.

But in the range of Gospel truth, there are subjects of instruction, which, though not directly concerning His person and office, are so connected with all right appreciation of His saving grace, that we cannot keep them out of view without affecting most injuriously our whole ministry. Be it remembered that while the cross, with its immediate neighborhood, is the metropolis of Christianity, all the region round about is Holy Land, more or less holy according to the nearness to that "city of our God;" "a land of milk and honey," "of brooks and fountains of water," intersected in all directions with highways by which pilgrims to Zion approach the desire of their hearts. It is the office of the gospel preacher to map out that land; to trace those converging roads; to set up the way-marks to the city of Refuge. Christ is not fully preached, when any truth which teaches the sinner's need of such a Saviour, illustrating His preciousness by showing our ruin and beggary through sin dwelling in us, and bringing condemnation upon us, is kept in obscurity. The wisdom of "the scribe, instructed unto the kingdom of God to bring out of his treasure things new and old," is found in his omitting nothing connected with the Gospel, however remote from the great central truths and duties; and in his giving to each its portion in due season, as well as its place in due relation.

For example: Christ is our "righteousness" unto justification to every one that believeth, so that in Him there is no condemnation.* But we shall preach Him in vain, in that light, unless we show the sinner's absolute need of such righteousness. We must seek, under the power of the Holy Ghost, so to convince him of sin that he shall see himself to be under the condemnation of God's law, without excuse and without hope, till he flies to that refuge. Blessed is he whose ministry the Spirit employs to teach that lesson of ruin and beggary. It is the threshold of the way of life. The text-book in that teaching is the law — God's will, as our rule of life, however and where-ever expressed. Preached in a spiritual application to the secrets of the heart, not only as the rule of obedience, but as the condition of peace with God to every one that is not in Christ Jesus, and on the perfect keeping of which all his hope depends, — preached in view of the salvation of Jesus as only increasing the condemnation so long as it is salvation neglected, — it is the instrument of the Holy Ghost to strip the sinner of self-reliance and self-justification, to humble him before God under a sense of guilt and ruin, and as a "schoolmaster to lead him to Christ, that he may be justified by faith." He that would preach a full justification in Christ, without works, must preach entire condemnation under the law, by works. By the law is the knowledge of sin, and hence the knowledge in part of Christ. Clear, unequivocal statements of the divine law; the full exhibition of the text, "Cursed is every one that continueth not in all things written in the book of the law to do them" (that continueth not in all things from first to last of life), thus carrying the sword of the Spirit into the discerning of the thoughts and intents of the heart, is the special basis of, and preparation for, all saving knowledge of Christ. The way of the Lord is prepared by that forerunner. How many more consciences would cry out for relief under the load of sin, how much oftener would the careless heart be awakened to seek mercy through Christ, were there only a more searching comparison of all that is in man with all the holiness of the will of God!

* Romans viii. 1.

Again: Christ is "made unto us sanctification."* But how can we do justice to so cardinal a truth of God's grace, unless we do ample justice to that other great truth of man's nature out of which arises all the need of a Sanctifier — the entire "corruption of the nature of every man that is naturally engendered of the offspring of Adam"? † The beginning of sanctification is to be born again of the Holy Ghost. According to men's views of the extent to which by nature they are corrupt and alienated from God, will be their views of the spiritual nature, necessity, and extent of that great change. Hence, to preach Christ in sanctification, we must preach man in his natural corruption. The "carnal mind" is "enmity against God, and is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can be." ‡ Let us faithfully

* 1 Cor. i. 30.

† Article IX. of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

‡ Rom. viii. 7.

expound those words of St. Paul. We need no stronger declaration as the basis of the whole superstructure of the need of an entire inward regeneration, making the sinner a new creature in Christ Jesus — new in heart, new in life and hope. That this preaching of the necessity of such new creature is eminently the preaching of Christ, we have a striking testimony in these words of the Epistle of the Ephesians (chap. iv. 20–24): "Ye have not so learned Christ; if so be ye have heard Him, and been taught by Him, as the truth is in Jesus; that ye put off the old man, which is corrupt according to the deceitful lusts, and be renewed in the spirit of your mind; and that ye put on the new man, which after God is created in righteousness and true holiness."

But how shall we speak of so great spiritual transformation, without speaking with equal stress of Him who produces it? What sanctification is to salvation, such is the right teaching of the power and office of the Holy Ghost, the Sanctifier, the Spirit of Christ, and all-comprehending gift of God. What is there in the Christian life, from first to last, that is not the work of the Holy Ghost? Is the sinner convinced of sin? Jesus sent the Spirit to do that work. Is he quickened from spiritual death? "It is the Spirit that quickeneth." Is he born again? He is "born of the Spirit." Is he spiritually-minded? It is because he "minds the things of the Spirit." Is he a "follower of God," as a dear child? It is because he is "led by the Spirit of God." Hath he an internal evidence of that sonship? It is because "the Spirit beareth witness with his spirit." Is the love of God "shed abroad in our hearts"? It is "by the Holy Ghost given unto us." Do we learn how to pray as we ought? It is because "the Spirit helpeth our infirmities." Are we comforted with the consolation of Christ? The Spirit is "the Comforter." Are we strengthened in our duty? It is "by the Spirit in the inner man." Do we grow in the knowledge of Christ? Jesus said of the Holy Ghost, "He shall take of mine and show it unto you." And beside the spiritual resurrection and sanctification, will these vile bodies also rise? will they also be sanctified and made glorious according to the glory of our risen Lord? It is written that "He shall quicken your mortal bodies by His Spirit that dwelleth in you." *

Rightly to honor the Holy Ghost as He is thus revealed in His own inspired word,—how important to the faithfulness and fruitfulness of our ministry! We may so come short of it, we may so contradict it, that while bearing a very reputable character before men, we may all the while be "grieving the Holy Ghost," yea, even "resisting the Holy Ghost." How much barrenness in the work of the ministry in making, not more church-members, but spiritually-enlightened and spiritually-minded followers of Christ, may be ascribed to deficiency — negativeness at least, in this great department of our teaching! In no part of his work does a minister more need to be taught of God, or to sit humbly at the feet of Jesus to learn of him; nowhere does a decline of spirituality of mind so soon show itself as here. In no part of our work do we depend more upon a decided, habitual, personal experience in our own souls of God's gracious operation. It is here that great departures from the truth, which go on to carry away eventually whole communities of professing Christians into manifold and essential errors, almost always secretly or overtly begin; as it is the final construction of a system from which the personal office of the Holy Ghost is virtually, if not professedly, excluded, in which they culminate. The scriptural description of a spiritual mind is, that it "minds the things of the Spirit." It is equally the test of a spiritual and evangelical ministry. That which specially tries our spiritual discernment and skill in rightly dividing the word of truth, is the right adjustment of means of grace in their relation to the power of grace, of instruments of blessing to the hand that employs them, and that gives them all their efficacy. The Spirit hath His instruments. His grace hath its means. His great instrument in our sanctification is His own revealed Truth, by which He testifies of, and glorifies the Lord Jesus, in our eyes. Sacraments are that same essential truth, taught under other signs, and sealed with a special impressiveness. The preaching of that same truth by an ordained ministry, is the great instrumentality of the Spirit. The point of caution is, while giving all due place to the instrument, that we keep it exclusively in the place of a mere instrument — of no avail in itself; that we treat it as we treat the glass by which we seek to see some distant star — not as an object to be looked at, but only as a help to look immeasurably beyond and above it; that as the glass is nothing without the light, so the means of grace are nothing without "the Spirit of grace;" that all the power is of the Holy Ghost, and that power not deposited in the means, as we put bread into the hand of a distributor, so that whosoever receives the latter receives the bread; that power never divorced from the personal ministry of the Spirit, but applied directly by Himself to each heart that receives His grace, He "dividing to every man severally as He will." To speak of an ordinance, a sacrament, any means of grace, even the Holy Scriptures of truth, as if they were in any sense the power unto salvation, or as if they contained, whatever its original source, the grace by which we live unto God, thus leading men to look to them, instead of only, by their help, to Christ and His Spirit, is to "do despite to the Spirit of grace."

* Rom. viii. 11.

The whole truth in this connection is found where the Apostle says, "Who is Paul, and who is Apollos, but ministers by whom ye believed, even as the Lord gave to every man." * Instead of Paul and Apollos, read any ordinance or means of grace. What are they but ministrations of man by help of which ye believe, even as the Lord giveth to every man?

There is a text which the full and explicit preaching of Christ will be always directly or indirectly, consciously or unconsciously, illustrating. It is those verses in the second chapter of the Epistle to the Ephesians, "By grace are ye saved, through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God: not of works, lest any man should boast. For we are His workmanship, created in Christ Jesus unto good works." Salvation all of grace only; in its origin in the love of God; in its purchase by the blood of Christ; in the first quickening of the sinner from the death of sin; in all the renewal of his nature; in his acceptance through Christ, to the peace of God; in his whole ability to live as a child of God; and in his final admission to the glory of God — all of grace only — wonderful grace! — but through faith alone, and that faith itself a gift of grace; our works in every degree and aspect wholly excluded from the work of saving us, though necessarily included as fruits of the grace that does save us — we being created anew in Christ Jesus unto good works, and not in any degree by good works; first God's workmanship making us new creatures, then our working as so created "unto good works which God hath ordained that we should walk in them." We preach such works, first, as absolutely excluded from having any part in procuring our Justification before God;

* 1 Cor. iii. 5.

secondly, as essential fruits and evidences of our having obtained such Justification. We preach the office of Faith as so vital that only by it are we united to Christ, as living stones built upon the living head of the corner; and the necessity of good works as so absolute, that only in them can we walk as God hath ordained, and have evidence that we are true believers in Jesus; and at the same time both faith and works deriving all being from the Spirit of God, and all value and efficacy to salvation from the Righteousness of Christ.

Here let me add some few miscellaneous observations. We are bound to instruct the believer in all the privileges and consolations that are in Christ, that his joy may be full. But we must lay equal stress on all his obligations, that Christ may be glorified. Out of the same wounds of the cross come privilege and duty, promise and commandment, the consolation of faith and the duty of obedience; and the same preaching that leads to the one must alike insist on the other, and on both as necessary to our having that rest which Jesus promises. It is a great matter so to preach the precepts of Christ as to lead men to embrace His promises; and so the promises as to draw the disobedient to the love of his precepts. In all our work we have two great sources of persuasion, according to the example of St. Paul, namely, "We beseech you by the mercies of God," and again, "Knowing the terror of the Lord, we persuade men;" the love of God in Christ as a Saviour, and the wrath of God in Christ as Judge of quick and dead; a cloud of light and a cloud of darkness, each proceeding from the cross as accepted or rejected. We must do all in tenderness, but all in faithfulness. The whole counsel of God embraces the fearful penalty of unpardoned sin as well as the glorious inheritance of the reconciled in Christ. The faithful preacher of Christ keeps back none of it. While he delights in the loving aspects of His grace, he is not ashamed of the severities of His justice. He does not, indeed, denounce or judge. It is not for him to command or condemn. His work is always to entreat and persuade; tenderly, lovingly, patiently, in the mind of Christ. But persuasion has the alarming truths to use as well as the encouraging. That "God is a consuming fire," out of Christ, is as much an argument of persuasion and tenderness, as that in Christ, "God is Love." We read of "the goodness and severity of God." * We must exhibit both. They interpret and enforce one another. But how to balance aright judgment and mercy, invitation and warning, precepts of obedience and promises of consolation, the tender "Come unto me, and I will give you rest," with the stern "Depart, ye cursed, into everlasting fire;" the darkness and the light — the loving voice from the Mercy-seat and the dreadful sentence from the Judgment-seat — all under the duty of teaching and preaching Jesus Christ, is not learned from books only, is not given by specific rule, but comes chiefly out of the state of the heart, under the general light of the Scriptures, and by a careful endeavor to learn of, and be like, Him, of whom it is beautifully written, that He hath "the tongue of the learned, to know how to speak a word in season to him that is weary."*

* Rom. xi. 22.

From all that has now been said, it appears how mistaken is the idea that by confining our preaching to Christ and Him crucified we have a very narrow range of truth to expatiate in. In reality, we have the whole vast range of natural and revealed religion. A wider field no preacher can find who does not seek it beyond the confines of religious truth. The difference between the man who confines himself to the preaching of Christ and him who does not, need not be that the latter embraces any portion of divine truth — of doctrine or duty, of history or prophecy or precept, which enters not into the range of the former. It may be wholly a difference in the mode of presenting precisely the same truth — a difference in the bearings; in the relations assigned to every part; in the cardinal points to which all is adjusted; in the polarity, so to speak, which governs such manifestation of truth as deserves the name and praise of the preaching of Christ. You may take truth from the immediate neighborhood of the cross, or from the farthest boundaries of the domain of Christianity, and when its just relation to Christ and His redemption is exhibited Christ is preached. Thus there is no reason why, in the most faithful ministry, there may not be abundant variety of topic and of instruction. The sermon may be always shining in the light of our glorious Lord, while receiving it either by direct looking unto Him, or indirectly from secondary objects, which, as satellites of the sun, revolve around Him and shine in His glory. The sermon, in all its spirit and tendency, may say, "Behold the Lamb of God," and yet the view may be as changing as the positions from which it is taken, the circumstances which influence it, the lights and shadows of the several conditions and necessities of the minds before which it is placed. In general, we may say, that as no subject is legitimate in the preaching of a minister of Christ that does not admit of being presented in some important relation to Christ, so no sermon is evangelical that does not truly exhibit such relation, giving Him the same position to the whole discourse that He holds in the Scriptures to the whole body of truth therein. As some subjects have a much nearer and more vital relation to Him than others, they will be much the most frequent and engrossing in the preaching of a faithful Christian minister. The great truths, the great facts, the great duties, and privileges, and interests, and consolations which proceed the most directly from the person and office, the death and intercession of Christ, and the work of the Holy Spirit, as well as those which lead the most immediately thereto, will be so habitually the subjects of his preaching, that the more remote and indirect will be only occasional exceptions to the standing rule and habit. And which of these classes of subjects his mind and heart most delight in, and which draws forth the deepest earnestness and the strongest emotions of his soul, will not be doubtful.

* Isaiah l. 4.

I have now exhibited as much of this great and wide subject as I could, with any propriety, occupy your time with. You will, of course, understand that I have not attempted to embrace the whole field. What has been attempted, I am deeply conscious is most imperfect and inadequate. Still I have not withheld my best endeavors where even St. Paul exclaimed, "Who is sufficient for these things!" I conclude with a brief view of the state of mind and spirit which qualifies a minister to be a faithful preacher of Christ.

1. A spirit of Faith. I mean Faith, not merely in such of its exercises as make the minister a living Christian, and a growing, vigorous Christian, but in that special exercise which enables him to go on patiently, persistently, hopefully, immovably, preaching the Gospel as we have seen the Apostles preached it, in like simplicity and spirituality — with as little of the devices, and mixtures, and dilutions, and subterfuges of man's wisdom, no matter what the obstacles or what the apparent fruitlessness — believing it is God's own way, to which alone His blessing is promised, and which He will bless as His own "wisdom and power unto salvation." It was precisely with such meaning that St. Paul, just after he had pronounced, "We preach not ourselves, but Christ Jesus the Lord," and just after he had adverted to the fact that such preaching failed to open the eyes of many that heard, saying, "If our Gospel be hid, it is hid to them that are lost, in whom the god of this world hath blinded the minds of them which believe not," * — it was in full view of all whom their preaching did not succeed in convincing, but only made the more hardened and hopeless, that he said, "We believe, and therefore speak," † meaning not only that they believed what they spoke, but that they believed it was just what God commanded them to speak, and they realized its unspeakable importance and preciousness to the souls of men. And no rejection of it by man could shake that confidence, or lead them to speak any thing else, or in any other way. Well they knew what a "stumbling-block to the Jew," and what utter "foolishness to the Greek," was their testimony concerning Christ crucified; but not a word would they change — "We believe, and therefore speak."

It was this lesson of faith that Paul gave to Timothy. He warned him of a time of apos-

* 2 Cor. iv. 3, 4. † v. 13.

tasy approaching. "The time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine; and they shall turn away their ears from the truth, and be turned unto fables."* How then was Timothy to do in such times? What "sound doctrine" meant in the mind of St. Paul, we well know — all that way of justification by the righteousness of Christ imputed, and of sanctification by the Spirit of God imparted, to the believer; that whole way of life, of which the vicarious propitiation by the sacrifice of Christ was the central power and life. It was all that doctrine which men would not endure. And what was Timothy to do? Was he to conclude that he, and other preachers of Christ, had taken the wrong method because it was thus unsuccessful? that they must find out some other sort of preaching because that was so rejected? Since men would not endure sound doctrine, must they try to get them into the church, or if in the church already, to make them satisfied to stay there by giving them unsound doctrine? If the truth caused the carnal mind's enmity against God to turn away from it, must they turn away from the truth, and give them another Gospel? What said the faith of an apostle? No compromise — no accommodation — only so much more earnestly and continually that same rejected doctrine. Hear Paul's remedy! "I charge thee, before God and the Lord Jesus Christ, who will judge the quick and the dead at His appearing and His kingdom — preach the word (the same offensive word), be instant in season, out of season — reprove, rebuke, exhort, with all long-suffering and doctrine."* The more the truth is turned away from, so much the more proclaim it. God will see to the issue. "So we preach, not as pleasing men, but God which trieth the heart." Such is the faith of which we are speaking, as of such importance in our ministry.

* 2 Tim. iv. 3, 4.

The times which St. Paul predicted, and which began before Timothy had ended his labors, are yet in being. We all know how they have been exhibited since the beginning of this century, both in this country and in Europe, under the form of Unitarianism and Rationalism. It is the old demand: "The Greeks seek after wisdom." And we must meet it with the old satisfaction: We preach Christ crucified, unto the Jews a stumbling-block, and unto the Greeks foolishness; but unto them which are called, both Jews and Greeks, Christ the power of God, and the wisdom of God." *

* 2 Tim. iv. 1, 2.

The atonement is the great offence — that one perfect and sufficient oblation and satisfaction for sin, in the death and sacrifice of our Lord Jesus Christ, perfect God and perfect man in the unity of His divine person, and in the bearing of our iniquities; being "made a curse for us" under the sentence of the law, of which our sin is the transgression — that atonement embraced and made availing to each man's salvation through a living faith, and equally accessible and efficacious to all that do thus believe in the Lord Jesus, whether the wise or the unwise, the great or the despised, the chief of sinners or those much less sinful, so that in this respect there is no difference, because "all have sinned." That atonement, with all the branches of truth and duty, of privilege and responsibility, which reside therein and depend therefrom, and which lose all place, and life, and value the moment that True Vine is taken away — that is the offence. That is the "sound doctrine" which the wisdom of this world cannot endure; for which it labors to find a substitute, and to get rid of which the inspiration of the Scriptures is so fought against, lest men should be obliged to take them as a final Rule of Faith and Life.

* 1 Cor. i. 22–24.

Now when this is the case, what course must a faithful minister of Christ adopt? I ask the question to illustrate the faith of which I am speaking: "We believe, and therefore speak." Must we, may we preach the word, as Paul understood and preached it, one whit the less plainly, simply, boldly, with more of the enticing words of man's wisdom, in order the more to please men, and in that degree the less to approve ourselves unto God whose messengers we are, and whose message we have no permission to change, to dilute, to interpolate, or to conceal? Shall we suppose that to preach Christ, as the Apostles did, is not as much now, and as exclusively, "the wisdom and power of God," as it was when they preached? Or shall we believe as they believed, and therefore speak as they spake, to all people, and with all perseverance, and prayer, and boldness, though the whole earth be drowned in unbelief, and men everywhere be turned unto fables? What is the answer of a true faith in God? No change, no dilution, no compromise, — no progress but in the line of the more close following of the Apostles, in spirit, in faith, in purity, in simplicity. The old exhortation still sounds aloud through the Church, and will to the end — "Preach the Word," the same old Word — instant in season, and so "do the work of an evangelist, and make full proof of thy ministry." If the time has come when men will not endure that Word, and will turn away from that truth, the time will come to every faithful, patient, earnest, loving, believing minister thereof, when the hearts of the disobedient shall, under the power of God, be turned unto the wisdom of the Just, and they that sat in darkness and spiritual death, without hope, shall come to the light of life in Christ Jesus, and being made new creatures in Him, shall count all things but loss for the excellency of the knowledge of His great salvation.*

Let patience have her perfect work. Be not faithless, but believing. God's hand is not shortened that it cannot save by that same word now as in the ancient times.

2. But to preach Christ is not only "a work of faith," it is "a labor of love." I will not say that no man can do it in a certain sense, that is, with doctrinal correctness, without the love of Christ in his heart; for St. Paul speaks of some in his day who preached Christ, "even of envy and strife, not sincerely," from selfish and evil motives. I will not prolong this address in enlarging on the elementary truth, that without a personal experience of the preciousness of Christ to our own souls, by each one's individual participation in the hope that rests on His justifying righteousness, and is witnessed by the sanctifying power of His Spirit dwelling in us, we cannot preach Christ, according to His will, in His mind, in the tenderness, and earnestness, and patience, and godly wisdom, which alone become His ministry, however correct our teaching in a mere doctrinal aspect. What I wish, in these concluding words to insist on, is, the importance of a very earnest, tender, and overcoming love, to give living religion to our theology, and the mind of Christ to our teachings concerning Him. Two preachers, alike in accurate and full statement of all that is revealed concerning our blessed Lord and His Salvation, may be very different in the spiritual power of their ministry, and the difference will not depend so much on the superiority of talent or of eloquence, or even of diligence in one over the other, as on their comparison in point of love. He will preach best who loves most. His preaching will go most to the heart, and will be attended with most of "the demonstration of the Spirit," who, in all he says and does, is most constrained by the love of Christ dictating, animating, sanctifying, with the tenderness and patient earnestness of his Master's mind, his whole discourse. Oh, that we were more earnest to grow in this grace! What ought we to value in personal attainment compared with it? If you shall attain to the ministry, and find it fail in spiritual efficacy, inquire into the cause, by searching the state of your hearts in regard to the love of Christ therein, to what extent the aim, the zeal, the topics, the temper of your work, and the whole character of your personal example, are under the dominion of that love.

* 2 Tim. iv. 2–5.

But I have already occupied too much of your time, and yet I feel that I have come very far short of the height and breadth of what I have sought to exhibit. "We have this treasure in earthen vessels, that the excellency of the power may be of God and not of us." Blessed be God, that in our weaknes we have His power to lean on. I humbly pray that power of God to bless to you, my dear brother, what in so much weakness, and imperfectness, and unworthiness I have now addressed to you. Nothing in this world could I rejoice in so much as to be instrumental, under God's grace, in promoting the spiritual excellency and efficacy of your future work and your personal growth in the faith and love of Christ. The time is at hand when nothing else will seem of the smallest value. I commend you to God, and to the word of His grace, which is able to build you up, and make you good stewards of the unsearchable riches of Christ. "The God of peace, who brought again from the dead our Lord Jesus, that great Shepherd of the sheep, through the blood of the everlasting covenant, make you perfect in every good work to do His will, working in you that which is well pleasing in His sight, through Jesus Christ, to whom be glory and dominion forever and ever." Amen.

Such is the prayer of your friend and brother in the Gospel of Christ.

CHARLES PETTIT MCILVAINE,

Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the Diocese of Ohio.

CHOICE BOOKS AND TRACTS

Imported and Sold

BY THE

GOSPEL BOOK AND TRACT

DEPOSITORY,

No. 2 Hamilton Place,

BOSTON.

NOTES ON THE BOOK OF GENESIS.

By C. H. McIntosh, London.

All who love and relish the simple gospel of the grace of God will be delighted with this book. To Christ's servants in the Gospel, sound forcible statements as to what sin is, and what grace is, are deeply valuable in the present time, when so much that is merely superficial is abroad.

NOTES ON THE BOOK OF EXODUS.

By C. H. McIntosh.

Redemption by blood occupies a prominent place in Exodus. It characterizes the book. God's many mercies to his redeemed in the display of his power, the patience of his love, and the riches of his grace flow from it. Many readers will be surprised at the amount of gospel truth found in this book.

NOTES ON THE BOOK OF LEVITICUS.

By C. H. McIntosh, London.

"Very many who for years looked upon the Book of Leviticus as little more than a dry catalogue of Jewish ordinances, are now discovering in it an exhaustless mine of spiritual wealth, for which they cannot be too thankful." They have brought its marvellous pages under the light of the New Testament Scriptures, and then can only wonder at that which is now unfolded to their gaze.

NOTES ON THE BOOK OF NUMBERS.

By C. H. McINTOSH, London.

"The Book of Numbers may be regarded as a perpetual memorial of Jehovah's patient, tender, and unwearied care of His murmuring and rebellious people. It is emphatically a wilderness book, and characterized by journeyings, service, and all the viscissitudes of wilderness life. As such, it is deeply interesting, most instructive, and easily applied to the Christian in this present evil world." The first thing that attracts our attention in reading the book is sweet and precious to the heart beyond expression.

God has His people numbered and gathered around Himself. He dwelt in the camp. "In the midst whereof I dwell."

NOTES AND REFLECTIONS

ON THE EPISTLES TO THE ROMANS, EPHESIANS, AND HEBREWS.

By ARTHUR PRIDHAM.

"Sound, enlightening, and edifying." — Christian Witness.

"A great amount of most precious truth and able criticism."

The Epistle to the Romans contains the foundation truth of Justification by Faith, and also elucidates the dispensational dealings of God in connection with the Jew, the Gentile, and the Church of God.

The Epistle to the Ephesians reveals God's eternal purpose concerning the Church, her present place of power and responsibility, and her glorious future.

The Epistle to the Hebrews contrasts the present with the past dispensation, and unfolds the glorious high-priesthood of the Lord Jesus Christ.

AN EXPOSITION OF THE TABERNACLE,

THE PRIESTLY GARMENTS, AND THE PRIESTHOOD.

By H. W. SOLTAN.

"Mr. Soltan has produced no ordinary book. There is as much real thought in any page of it as can be found in a volume of some of the 'popular' religious authors of the day." — Coleraine Chronicle.

CHRIST OUR STRENGTH.

Affectionately addressed to every believer in Christ.

"This is a pretty little 32mo of fifty-two pages, but a very gem. It is worth its weight in gold. It has a heart-aspiring, soul-cheering, Christ-exalting tendency." — Gospel Magazine.

THE SOUL AND ITS DIFFICULTIES;

OR, A WORD TO THE ANXIOUS.

By H. W. Soltan. (Fortieth Thousand.)

"Very admirable. Clear as a sunbeam in its teachings. It should be given away by thousands."— Coleraine Chronicle.

"We do not know how to speak in commendation of this little book. Many a once anxious, but now happy soul knows how sweet it is."

FEATHERS FOR ARROWS.

By C. H. Spurgeon.

My aim has not been to amuse the reader, but to furnish Feathers for Arrows for the servants of Christ Jesus.— Extract from Preface.

THE LAW OF THE OFFERINGS,

CONSIDERED AS THE APPOINTED FIGURE OF THE VARIOUS ASPECTS OF THE OFFERING OF THE BODY OF JESUS CHRIST.

By Andrew Jukes.

"We see from the writings of St. Paul, not only how closely these emblems are connected with Christ, but also how aptly they illustrate, in simplest figures, the wondrous truths and profound mysteries of redemption."

GOD'S WAY OF PEACE.

By Rev. Horatius Bonar, D. D.

"The best book for the anxious ever written."— Revival Truth.

ON WORSHIP.

By Rev. J. L. Harris, D. D.

CONTENTS.

The Worshippers once Purged.
Boldness to enter into the Holiest.
Drawing near to God.
The Priesthood and the Law Changed.
A Minister of the Sanctuary.
A Wordly Sanctuary.
A High Priest of Good Things to Come.

LAW AND GRACE.

Notes of Lectures on the Epistle to the Galatians.
By Rev. J. L. Harris, D. D.

THE SCHOOL OF GOD.

By Rev. J. L. Harris, D. D.

THE PROGRESS OF DOCTRINE IN THE NEW TESTAMENT.

By Thomas Delany Bernard, M. A., of Exeter College, England.

"As nearly perfect, both in substance and form, as any human production can well be made.

"The language in which these lectures are presented is clear as crystal, revealing every thought and shade of thought with absolute distinctness.

"Not a dark or dull sentence in the volume.

"I have rarely perused a more attractive or instructive work, and I do not hesitate to pronounce it one of the best fruits of biblical study in modern times."

REV. ALVAH HOVEY, D. D.
Newton Theological Institution.

IMMEDIATE SALVATION FOR THE CHIEF OF SINNERS.

A Practical Guide for Anxious Inquirers. By Rev. James Gall, Edinburgh.

NOVUM TESTAMENTUM GRAECE.

Edidit
Car. G. Guilielmus Theile.
Accedit
Appendix Tischendorfii de Codice Sinaitico. Lipsiæ.

NOVUM TESTAMENTUM GRAECE.

Recensuit
Constantinus Tischendorf.

BIBLICA HEBRAICA.

Recensuit
Augustus Hahn.
Editio Stereotypa. C. Tauchnitz. Lipsiæ.

VETUS TESTAMENTUM GRAECE,

Secundum Septuaginta Interpretes.
Cura et Studio Leandri Van Ess. Lipsiæ.

GLEANINGS AMONG THE SHEAVES.

By Rev. C. H. Spurgeon.

The stems grow up every week.
The shocks appear once a month.
The sheaves are bound together once a year.

TWELVE FAVORITE SERMONS FOR THE CLOSET OR SICK ROOM.

By Rev. J. W. Alexander, D. D., Rev. James Hervey, Joseph Alleine, Rev. John Ker, Glasgow, Bishop Beveredge, Archbishop Leighton, President Davies, Rev. John Newton, Rev. Andrew Fuller, Stephen Tyng, D. D., Alexander Vinet, D. D.

THE OLD GOSPEL WAY,

OR THE MARROW OF WHAT OLD DIVINES HAVE SAID UPON THE GOSPEL.

READINGS FOR THE SICK ROOM,

FOR INSTRUCTION, COUNSEL, AND COMFORT IN THE HOURS OF WEAKNESS AND SUFFERING.

"There is no human composition better adapted than this for giving to the afflicted, and we believe it will be circulated in tens of thousands." — British Herald.

ISRAEL'S FUTURE.

LOCK CHAPEL LECTURES.

By Rev. Capel Molyneux, Minister of the Chapel.

"It is not ingenuity of system, nor plausibility of theory, nor beauty of illustration, nor even apparent consistency of interpretation, but manifest agreement with the written word of God, and nothing else, that determines the worth of an exposition, or entitles it to our credit." — Extract from Preface.

MEMOIR OF REV. WILLIAM C. BURNS,

MISSIONARY TO CHINA.

The Gospel in the Book of Joshua.

The object of this little volume is to direct the mind to the recognized analogy between the Book of Joshua and the Epistles to the Ephesians and Colossians.

The Characteristic Differences of the Four Gospels. By REV. A. JUKES, London.

Contents.

The Four Gospels. Four Views of Christ.
St. Matthew, or the Son of Abraham.
St. Mark, or the Servant of God.
St. Luke, or the Son of Adam.
St. John, or the Son of God.
The Common Testimony.
Index of Peculiar Texts.

Memoir of the Lives of Robert Haldane and James A. Haldane.

It is a book which will, in a future age, be considered as deserving a chief place in the biography of the first half of the nineteenth century.

An Exposition of the Epistle to the Romans. By ROBERT HALDANE.

"The only commentary on the Romans that it does not excel is that of Calvin. The reader who wishes completely to master the doctrine of justification, as developed by Paul, we strongly recommend to study them both." — Edinburgh Presbyterian Review.

Jesus and the Coming Glory; Or, Notes on Scripture. By JUDGE JONES, of Phila.

The aspect of the work is not devotional, nor is it controversial; nor is it, properly speaking, dogmatical; but it is of the nature of a judicial analysis, and the determination of the true meaning of a record, the particular portions of which, that bear specially upon certain vast topics, have been submitted to a most vigorous scrutiny. An original, independent, temperate, and able contribution in aid of every one who is inquiring concerning the true sense of God's word, touching the great promise and the great threat of the New Testament Scriptures.

REV. R. T. BRECKINRIDGE, D. D.

Luther's Commentary on Galatians.

Daily Light on the Daily Path.

A devotional text-book for every day in the year.

Bagster & Sons, London.

The Friends of Jesus Directed and Encouraged. By REV. WILLIAM REID.

The Book of Revelation,
From Ancient Authorities, with a Notice of a Palimpsest MS., hitherto unused. By S. P. TREGELLES, LL. D.

The Warrant of Faith.
A Hand-book to the Canon and Inspiration of the Scriptures.

Eight Lectures on Prophecy.

The Coming Glory.

The Return of the Lord Jesus.

The Eternal Purpose of God.

Sunbeams for Human Hearts,
From God's own Word.

Earth's Expedients and Heaven's Gospel.
Dedicated to Young Men. By REV. WILLIAM REID.

The Christian Home, and its Responsibilities.

The Old, Old Story.
From the London Edition, of which half a million copies have been sold, besides editions in German, French, Spanish, Italian, Welsh, Irish, and Bengali.

The Names, Titles, and Characters of Jesus Christ, our Lord. Bagster & Sons, London.

The New Testament.
The authorized English Version, with Introduction and Various Readings from the three most celebrated manuscripts of the original Greek text. By CONSTANTINE TISCHENDORF. Tauchnitz Edition, Leipzig.

The New Testament.
Authorized Version, newly compared with the original Greek, and revised by DEAN ALFORD.

Memoir of the late Rev. A. N. Groves,
With Preface by REV. ALEXANDER DUFF.

The Heavenly Life.
Being Select Writings of Adelaide L. Newton. Edited by REV. JOHN BAILLIE.

A Visit to the Waldenses by a Kentish Vicar.

The Soldiers of France.
A Brief Record of the Gospel Labors of an English Lady amongst the French Soldiery.

Manuel Matamoros and his Fellow Prisoners in Spain.

The Covenant of Life and Peace.

The Word of Promise.
A Hand-book to the Promises of Scripture. By HORATIUS BONAR, D. D.

Anna; or, Passages from the Life of a Daughter at Home.

It is Written; or, The Scriptures the Word of God. From the French of PROFESSOR GAUSSEN.

The Life, Labors, and Writings of Cæsar Malan. By one of his Sons.

The Doom of the Unjust,
Or The Doctrine of Eternal Punishment considered in its relation to the Person and Work of the Lord Jesus Christ. With an Appendix, containing a notice of disputed texts. By ARTHUR PRIDHAM.

The Christian Hero.
A Sketch of the Life of Robert Annan. By REV. J. MACPHERSON, Dundee, Scotland.

"This is one of the most soul-stirring books we have ever read." — Herald of Mercy.

It is a book to be read by all, but especially adapted to do good to the working classes.

Gosses' Narrative Tracts.

The C. S. Tracts.
Admirable for railway use.

A Narrative of some of the Lord's Dealings with George Muller. Written by himself.

WORKS BY ANNA SHIPTON,

OF ENGLAND.

Tell Jesus.

A very sweet and encouraging little work this must surely be found by the tried and tempted followers of Jesus.

Following Fully; or, Giving up all for Christ.

The Valley of Blessing.

Details of the conversion and last days of Louisa Matthews.

Saved Now; or, Pardon and Peace.

A true narrative.

The Secret of the Lord.

"Very valuable, and well adapted for a time like the present."

The Brook in the Way.

A volume of original Hymns and Poems illustrative of the Christian life.

Whispers in the Palms.

A volume of Hymns and Poetic Meditations.

"Charming in style, spiritual in matter, heavenly in tone." — Sword and Trowel.

The Child Minister.

Records of a young life.

Leaflets for Letters.

The Heavenly Friend.
The Loving Cup.
The Dying Thief.
Who is Willing.
"Sow beside all Waters."
Without Money and without Price.
The Fourth Watch.
The First Missionary.
A very present Help in Trouble.
Home! Light! Home!
"Wait on the Lord."
The Lost Cherith.

Christine; or, Broken Communion.

Wayside Service; or, The Day of Small Things.

"Full of devout and gentle earnestness. It is interesting from its many proofs of prayers heard and blessings bestowed, but more from its deep piety and the manifest fellowship of its writer with her God." — Sword and Trowel.

The Cottage on the Rock.
An Allegory.

"This allegory presents the Christian life in a way peculiarly interesting to the young." — Revival.

Precious Gems for the Saviour's Diadem.

"Radiant with devoutness and spirituality." — Christian World.

Angel Guest.

Faith's First Conflict.

Which Way; or, "Fetch them in, and tell them of Jesus."

The Gospel according to Moses.
As seen in the Tabernacle, and its Various Services. By REV. GEORGE RODGERS.

Pictorial Description of the Tabernacle in the Wilderness, its Rites and Ceremonies; for the use of Sunday School Teachers and other students of Scripture.

The Moral Glory of the Lord Jesus Christ.
By J. G. BELLETT.

Ashley Down; or, Living Faith in a Living God. Memorials of the new Orphan Houses on Ashley Down, Bristol. By W. ELFE TAYLOR.

Passages from the Diary and Letters of Rev. Henry Craik, of Bristol. By W. ELFE TAYLOR, with notices of his life and writings, and an introduction by Rev. George Müller.

VALUABLE BIBLICAL WORKS

PUBLISHED BY

S. BAGSTER & SONS,

LONDON.

The English Hexapla,
Exhibiting the six important translations of the New Testament Scriptures. With the original Greek text after Scholz, preceded by a history of English translations and translators.

The Commentary wholly Biblical.
An Exposition in the very words of Scripture.

The Bible of Every Land.
A History of the Sacred Scriptures in every language and dialect into which translations have been made; illustrated by specimen portions in Native Characters, series of Alphabets, colored Ethnographical Maps, Tables, Indexes, etc.

The Large Print Paragraph Bible,
In separate books. Complete in four volumes; also, in twenty-nine small volumes.

The Historic Evidence
Of the Authorship and Transmission of the New Testament. By S. P. TRIGILLES, LL. D.

An Amended Translation
Of the Epistle to the Hebrews. By Rev. HENRY CRAIK.

The Two Ways.
Churches of Scripture and their Ministry.
A Call to the Unconverted.
He came to Save Me.
Sent to the Lord.
She looked outside Herself.
Never Perish.
Taught of the Lord.
Things as they are, but ought not to be.
Not in my Sins.
The Scarlet Line.
Daily Trials, and How to Bear Them.
What is the Gospel?
The Riddle Solved.
Love of God to Sinners.
The Two Garments.
Object and Character of all True Service. By Alfred Trench.

Bright Sunset.
Jesus has Found Me.
Christ in the Vessel.
A Word to Young Disciples.
Wheat or Tares.
Caleb and Joshua.
Saints' Incomparable Places.
Mary of Bethany.
Trench on Communion.
The Golden Lamp.
Faithful Records.
Joseph Round.
Soul and its Difficulties. By Soltan.
Present Salvation.
Christ our Strength.
Bristol Orphans' Home.
How to be Happy.
How to be Saved.
How to get Peace.
How to get Pardon.
How Christ Saves.
How God loves Us.
How to get Rest.
How the Reasonings of an Anxious Soul were ended.
A few Words on Outward Adorning.
True Liberty.
True Levite.
Christian's Home.
The Resurrection, the fundamental truth of the Gospel.
Blood which Cleanseth.
Queen of Sheba.
Wanderer brought to the fold.
The Hiding Place, and Room in it for you.
Last Ball Dress.
God must have Realities.
The Threefold Bondage of the Sinner.
Book of Martyrs.
Address to Young Christian Women.
Mount Moriah and Mount Calvary.
Holy War.
Sin, its Punishment and Remedy.
Banner Unfurled.
Once to Die.
Christian Conduct.
Daily Light.
Why do the Birds Sing?
Word for a Fallen Sister.
The Substitute.
Friend and Traveller.
No Condemnation, no Separation.
Abiding in Christ.
What's the Harm?
The Lord's Coming.
Great Truths for Young People.
The Commercial.
Luther and the Count.
Love One Another.
Children of God by Faith in Christ.
Crucified, Dead, and Risen with Jesus.
Jesus died to light thee Home.
Kind Words about Jesus.
Peter's Fall.
Conversion of Children.
Fletcher of Madley.
Through Death unto Life.
Annals of the Poor.

☞ Also a large variety of small English Books and Tracts suitable for general distribution.

BV
4211

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS
0 029 789 310 5